FRANK GEHRY

GUEST LECTURE Jason K. Miller
Frank Owen Gehry (b.1929), known as one of the most representational postmodernist architects. Gehry demonstrates his creative process through deconstructivism, forming designs with combinations of diverse and unusual materials. Apart from architecture, he had his first national attention from a line of furnitures featured in magazine spreads that he built called Easy Edges. The collection was created for Vitra in 1972 as he engaged it through everyday materials with stacks of industrial corrugated cardboard. He succeeded in bringing a new aesthetic dimension created from humble materials into a high-end sculptural design, the Wiggle Side Chair as one of the pieces from the collection. Presenting simple yet futuristic, and eco-conscious furnitures to the field of modern innovations.
